Of the Bawaiian Islands.

HILO, HAWAII, June 20th, 1862.

To the Editor of the Com. Advertiser :

Knowing, by experience, that it is much harder to edit a newspaper during the dull months of summer, than during other portions of the year, when the times are lively and news abounds, allow me a limited space in your paper, for a few paragraphs. We left Honolulu, Friday afternoon, the 20th inst., and reached Labaina, the following afternoon. It was exceedingly gratilying to us to go on shore, and spend the Sabbath. The Rev. Dr. Baldwin invited our party to his hospitable dwelling, where so many weary voyagers have been entertained during the last quarter of a century. The vessel was detained until the following Monday morning, which afforded us an excellent opportunity to go on shore and spend the Subbath, in a place where each man does (or may) sit under his own vine and fig tree! Surely, the old Hebrews never plucked better grapes from the vale of Eschol, than grow at Lahaina. As for figs, they, too, are equal to those of Smyrna, (when raised from Smyrna trees.) We never met with better than those growing in Mr. Oudinot's premises. By the way, did you know that Mr. O.'s grandmother was sister of the Pioneer, Boone, of Old Kentucky, and, report says, that Marshal O. of son, of Rocky Mountain notoriety. Lahaina has decidedly "caved in" since whaleships have ceased to resort thither for suppties. A half score of good dwelling houses are " to let," but no applicants. The people of Labaina console themselves, that they are going to be better off than formerly. "Suppose whaleships have deserted us," say they, "we have a rich soil, and we are determined to produce sugar-cane that will astonish the world, if it does not equal the cane raised at Waikapu,-seven tons to the acre!"

France, was his uncle. More than all this, he has spent years trapping for furs, with Kit Car-

Two days' sailing from Lahaina, brought us safely to Hilo. We should be ungrateful not to say a kind word for the Maria and her excellent Commander, Capt. Crane. A more efficient and accommodating navigator, does not cruise among our islands. The Maria is clean and comfortable, which is more than can be said for many of our inter-island craft.

Hilo appears the same beautiful spot as when we visited it in 1844 and '55. The trade winds do not give the trees a "south-westerly leaning," but allow them to grow up stately, tall and comely. From the window where I am writing, several tall and beautiful " Pride of Indias" are to be seen, growing and spreading as if they were intending to display their comely proportions. The mango tree grows to a lofty height, but its fruit does not equal that produced in Honolulu. At a damp locality, trees, grasses, and flowers may grow most luxuriantly, but, after all, a warm sun is required for ripening fruits; hence, the excellent grapes of Lahaina, and Waimea, in Kauai, and the luscious water-melons from the dry and sunny shores of

Since our arrival at Hilo, I have been about the country, and visited localities where the planters are busily manufacturing, or preparing to manufacture sugar. The enterprising Germans from Kanai, who started a plantation in | Importers and Commission Merchants - Dealers in General the vicinity of Hilo, about eighteen months ago, are showing what can be accomplished when men take off their coats and go to work like men who understand their business. Their plantation is two or three miles from Hilo. They commenced "in the bush," but have cleared away guava bushes, and pushed the plow through one hundred acres of rich land, and now are anxiously watching the growing cane. Their crop looks fine, and they hope to commence grinding in November or December. They have put up their own building and constructed their own machinery. One of the partners is a carpenter and the other a blacksmith, or rather a machinist. I went over their plantation, and witnessed the great improvements which had been made in a few months. Among other improvements, they have constructed a water-course, which brings down a stream of water sufficient to turn their mill and any other machinery which may be attached. Their wheel is thirty feet in diameter, and is already in working order. At the time of my visit, the masons were busily at work setting the kettles. Success to Messrs. Reinhardt and Asegut! Hilo needs a score more of such men. A few miles farther along the coast, Mr. Hitchcock has just " broke ground" for another sugar plantation, under the auspices of Mr. Austin, of Hilo, and His Ex. the Chief Justice.

There is more good land in the Hilo Districtenough, it is said, for ten, perhaps twenty more plantations. What is wanting, is the right sort of men to start them,-men, who remember the old proverb, that "He who by the plow would thrive, Himself must either hold or drive."

Perhaps neither you nor many of your readers are aware of the fact that the Chinese Planters of Hilo have never used the plow at all! During the past twenty years they have been successful sugar growers, and yet never used the plaw. Their practice is to dig holes, about four feet apart and place their rows about eight feet apart. They insert the young plants in these holes, and do all the work of cultivation with the o-o and hoe. They never replant, but go on from year to year gathering the yearly crop, until the land is exhausted. There is one plantation where ten crops have successively been taken off! Surely the land should then be allowed to lie fallow and rest awhile ! !

Perhaps, Mr. Editor, I am writing too many paragraphs. I have surely written much more than I expected, but you know editors have such a scribbling propensity, that they sometimes write when they have but little that is new to scribbled, I notice that sometimes I have written "We," and at other times the simple "L" It is rather hard to shake off the trammels of the

"I" and "We" are now enjoying the kind hospitality of the Protestant Bishop of Hilo. Really, if there is a minister of Christ anywhere to be found on this "mundane sphere" meriting the title of Bishop, it surely is our host. His bishopric extends along a sea-coast of sixty or seventy miles, and his church records enroll a membership of 4 or 5,000 communicants. Notless than 10,000 have been admitted to the privileges of the Lord's table under his ministry. But I must close. Yours truly,
